OCTOBER 27 — NOVEMBER 7, 2020

ORIGINAL LIST PRICE OF $374,000

NOT YOUR NEIGHBOR'S Bentley

This 2013 Bentley Mulsanne Mulliner — with its Glacier White exterior, polished wheels (a factory add-on worth nearly $18,000), and stunning, passenger-friendly interior — is the picture of elegance.

Sprinkled throughout, you'll find little (and not-so-little) reminders that you're riding in the kind of luxury synonymous with a Bentley. The interior, decked out in linen and anthracite leather, features contrast stitching and a quilted diamond pattern on the seats and door panels. This color scheme nicely complements the burr walnut veneer on the dashboard and steering wheel, as well as the myriad of accents done in stainless steel, Bentley's preferred material over plastic. Other impressive details include drilled floor pedals, jewel fuel cap, premium audio system by Naim for Bentley, massaging seats with heating and cooling capabilities, mini refrigerator with champagne flutes; and of course, Bentley enthusiasts will immediately recognize the Flying B radiator mascot, as well as the Winged B logos that are embroidered on each of the head rests.

Mechanically, this Mulsanne offers the strong, solid, and quiet ride you'd expect. With a power delivery that's seemingly never-ending and just under 15,000 miles on the odometer, we're positive you'll enjoy this car for many posh rides to come.

HISTORY OF THE Bentley Mulsanne

1980

Bentley releases the Mulsanne, a four-door saloon, as its flagship model. Its name comes from the Mulsanne Corner of the Le Mans racing circuit, where Bentley racecars have earned six first-place finishes competing in the 24-hour racing format.

1992

Bentley ends the Mulsanne's first production run.

2009

The Mulsanne is resurrected and becomes the replacement for the Arnage, Bentley's flagship model at the time. The renewed car makes its first appearance at the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance in August; it holds the distinction of being the first flagship car to be independently designed by Bentley Motors in nearly 80 years.

2013

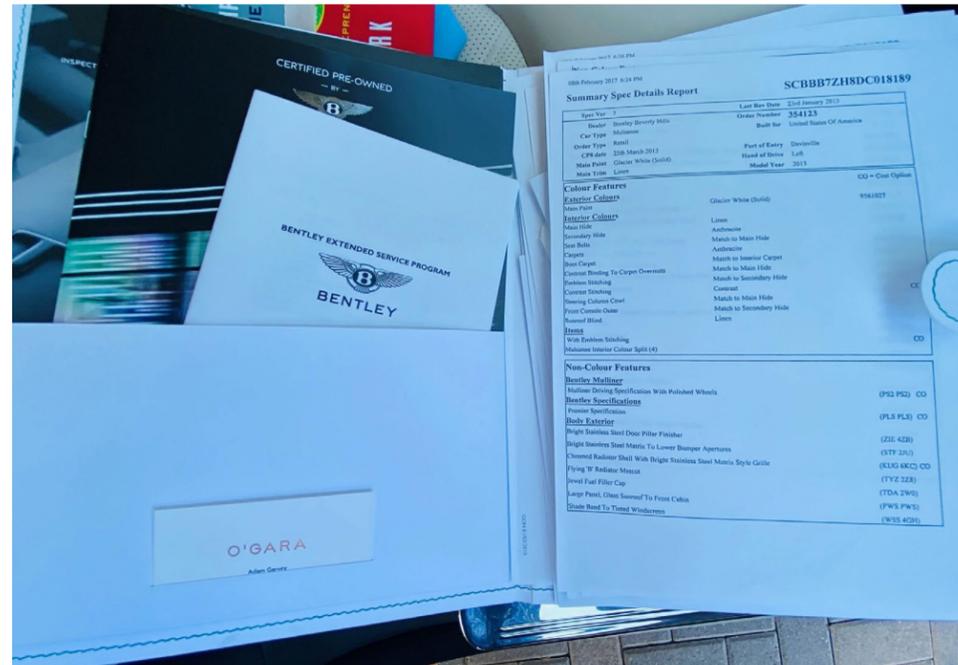

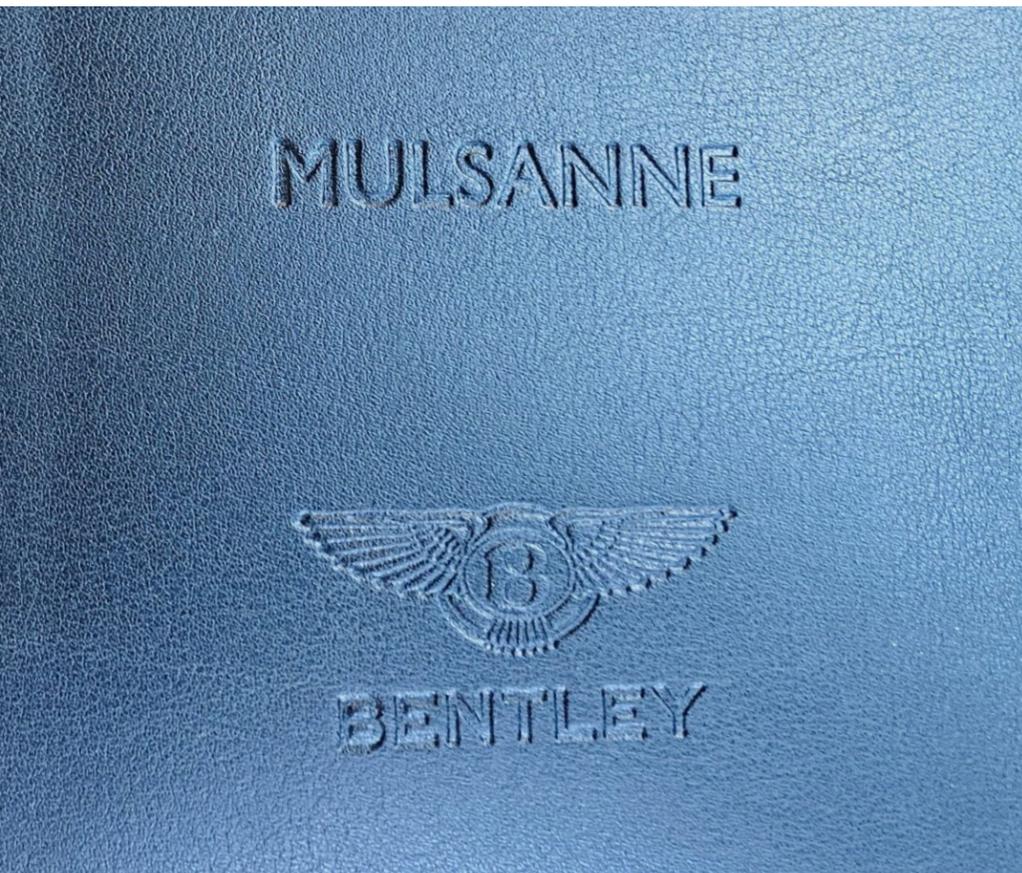

This particular Mulsanne Mulliner, VIN No. SCBBB7ZH8DC018189, is delivered to Bentley Beverly Hills. It has a sticker price of $374,000 and includes almost $80,000 worth of optional features.

2020

SCBBB7ZH8DC018189 is put up for auction by its current owner, who acquired the car as a certified pre-owned vehicle.
